WHAT TO EXPECT

Start with a morning pick-up from your accommodation in Cape Town or Stellenbosch. Leaving behind the city lights of the Cape Town region, this trip takes you towards whale country along the Southern Coast of South Africa.

The annual migration (July to November) of humpback and southern right whales along this region's coastline has earned the unassuming, little holiday village of Hermanus the honour of becoming the best land-based whale watching town in the world. By land or by sea, visitors are able to watch these gentle giants of the deep frolic freely and launch their aerial acrobatics in the Atlantic.

Spend the time at the coastal haven of Hermanus where winding ocean cliff paths await. Meander along paths lined with indigenous fynbos, lulled by the crashing sounds of ocean waves against the adjacent rocky shoreline.

Nature lovers will be thrilled by the rich birdlife and the chance to see local marine life frolicking about. Out of season you'll have the choice to travel to Gansbaai if you'd like to experience a Marine Big5 eco cruise.

After lunch, journey back to the Cape and if time permits, stop at the Harold Porter Botanical Gardens. Naturalists will delight in the diversity of plant life with more than 1600 species of plant life and fynbos and eagle-eyed twitchers might spot the timid African black ducks, ancient beehives, tortoise, proteas and Disa orchids on a short walk along the river and park in the reserve grounds.

The journey continues as you take the scenic road along the beautiful, rugged coastline to the tiny coastal hamlet of Betty's Bay to meet one of the Marine Big Five.

The endangered and cute African penguins at Stoney Point, with their tuxedo-like plumage, charm from the first sight. This is one of the largest and most successful breeding colonies in all of Africa and gives wildlife enthusiasts a chance to observe them at close quarters.

Curving along the epic Clarence Drive coastal road, appreciate the wild beauty of Kogelberg Biosphere along this picturesque stretch of road that connects Rooi Els village and the naval town of Gordon's Bay. Arguably the most scenic drive in South Africa, this coastal route snakes its way between the rugged mountains – giving you ample opportunity to snap farewell landscape photos over the 21 jaw-dropping kilometres before arriving at your end destination, Cape Town.
